

Natalie's Song

Script:

Last year, during distance learning Mr. Taylor “accidentally” screenshared this photo:

Autumn said something along the lines of, “hey, that looks like an album cover!” Mr. Taylor pretended not to hear her, but being the stalker I am, I enlisted the help of my dad to find his band- PopSky.

Young Mr. Taylor was the lead singer and boasts more than an entire album worth of songs- my favorite was Nathalie’s song.

It’s so catchy that my younger sisters now sing it around the house.

And so, without further ado, here’s my parody, “I never liked fast food” inspired by the film “Guys before Fries” by mia and me.

Lyrics:

Warm Summer night, it’s far from dry, the clouds roll throughout the sky, I think it must have something to do with her. As I begin my night’s crusade, I wonder how it began to fade and I feel like I’ve been here before. ~music~ The sky brightens like a torch, she’s fast asleep on her porch, awakens when I realize that she’s there. I sit down by her side, she looks through me like she’s blind, and I wonder when’s the last time she cared. Chorus: We never said “I love you,” and I wonder if we should. She never really knew me, and I wonder if she could. X2	Corn dogs burgers or a coke These things for me are just joke I’ve always wanted to eat healthily But when I saw you standing there With a hairnet on your hair I knew there was something I had to try... ... One small fry ~music~ When I looked into your eyes, I wasn’t there for salty fries. I know this is meant to be. Milkshakes give me a rush, I only want you, my crush. I wonder, would you like to share? Chorus: I never liked fast food, I only liked you, I never liked fast food, oh you know that it’s true. X2 Girl, you give me onion rings, I give you a real one in my dreams, ketchup reminds me of my

Lighting illuminates my view but all I can see is you, moonbeams pierce through the storm on high. As we walk down the road a single star shines on it's own, and she contemplates if it's worth it to try. Chorus: We never said "I love you," and I wonder if we should. She never really knew me, and I wonder if she could. X2 We never said "I love you." X5	bleeding heart. I relish our time together. I know it's cheesy, but so is that burger. Lettuce be more than friends. Chorus (skip to the last one): I never liked fast food, I only liked you, I never liked fast food, oh you know that it's true. When I saw you in the drive thru, girl you looked good. I never liked fast food, now I wonder if I should I never liked fast food x5

Shout out to Studio C and The Holderness Family for being my comedic influences. They both make parodies using exaggeration, jokes (which is a short story with a set-up and punchline, or funny climactic twist:), and mild satire. I tried to use these elements in making both the song and the video.

Oh, look, I'm all out of time. You know what they say, "Time FRIES when you're having fun"
